What Sort of Wife What Sort of Hubby Do You Want?

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

To-day the defense of the New York girl will be heard. She is thoroughly capable of defending herself against the criticisms of Arthur M. Loeb and "W. C." published the other day in The Evening World-as her letters to me prove. But not a few chivairous champions of the opposite sex have entered the lists in her behalf. The first letter printed to-day is from one of these gentlemen, who has found his ideal in Manhattan and doesn't hesitate to say so. The woman he wants to marry is an interesting combination of aesthetic and practical excellences, since she can manipulate a violin and corned beef and cabbage with equal skill. Yet why shouldn't the intelligent man desire such a combination? The ideal mate of the cultured modern woman may be somebody who can appreciate the poems of Rupert Brooke; yet, if she has any common sense, she wants him to be able to carn his own

THE MAN IS SILLY, BUT GIRL IS SETTLED.

Dear Madam: Boing a New York girl born and bred, I was not a little provoked at the views expressed by Mr. Loeb and bis followers of the girl of the Metropolis. Allow me to express my opinions:

"I work in a large concern that employs a number of girls who are inteiligent, modest and refined in dress and seek wholesome pleasures.

"From observation I know that the overdressed cabaret frequenter by no means typifies the New York girl. And I wish to say right here that in nine cases out of ten man is to blame for this type because of his continual craving for something different and sensational. The men de not see the modest, retiring girls because they do not put themselves forward and they DO exist in the business world. There are more of

There is an interesting question raised in one other letter published to-day, which I wish contributors to this discussion to consider, is it true, as one writer intimates, that the modern man cannot find a quiet, home-loving wife, because he showers most of his attentions on the showy, pleasure-crazy girl? A GIRL'S REBUKE FOR THE CENSORIOUS CATOS.

CENSORIOUS CATOS.

"Dear Madam: I have read your article on marriage, and I think it time for some of us New York girls to rebuke these critics. It seems that they see only the one type of the New York girl.

"Most of the young men of New York are quite as impossible; they really desire a giddy, overdressed girl.

"But I am more liberal than the censorious Catos. I think there is more than one type of New York man. My idea of a husband is that he be refined, educated, broad-minded and home-loving. I am twenty-one years of age and a business girl; good looking, but not beautiful, and of pleasing personality. G. L. W."
